FEDERAL USURPATION

By FRANKLIN PIERCE

Author of "The Tariff and the Trusts"

Large 12mo. $1.50 Net

Mr. Pierce, the well-known New York lawyer, regards his volume as "a plea for the Constitution of the United States." Nearly every industry, however remotely connected with interstate commerce, is sought to be controlled by child-labor laws, commissions or licences, and unless a determined body of citizens arise and oppose such usurpations the doom of our state government is already sounded. The book appeals especially to every one interested in law and government, and coming as it does at a time when so many weighty questions confront the nation, it will be eagerly read by good citizens everywhere.

DUFFIELD & COMPANY*announce for publicationFebruary 19thThe Sermon on the Mount*A new title in the RUBRIC SERIES

Both the King James' and the Revised Versions with chaste marginal decorations in colours. Bound uniformly with the earlier volumes of the Series. 60 cents net

*February 29thA Modern Prometheus: A Novel*By MARTHA GILBERT DICKINSON BIANCHI

An unusual blending of the conventional colours of mediaeval Italy with those of the complex palette of modern international life. The heroine is an American and the manner in which she works out her own salvation under the influence of a young Italian priest furnishes the opportunity for a novel of striking interest. With a frontispiece, $1.50.

*February 29thTo the End of the Trail*By RICHARD HOVEY

A posthumous volume of poems by America's greatest lyricist. Bound as a companion to "Along the Trail." $1.25 net.

*March 5thThe Marquis and Pamela*By EDWARD H. COOPER, author of "The Monk Wins"

A novel, describing the wooing of a well-known gambling marquis, and presenting a brilliant picture of smart English sporting society. The story throbs with the tense excitement of big race-meetings and the crowded lives of the devotees of the turf. Illustrated, $1.50.

BEFORE starting to read this story see that you have a firm grip upon the earth, or the chances are you will be swept from your moorings.

In "The Brass Bowl" Mr. Vance gave out a lively tale of mystery, but it is a summer calm compared with "The Black Bag," which is a veritable whirlwind.

Excitement piles upon excitement, mystery upon mystery, and adventure upon adventure, until the reader becomes so imbued with wonderment that it is practically impossible for him to surrender his attention or interest.

That can be said of very few stories, and is a testimonial to the improving skill of the author. — Philadelphia Record,

NEW MACMILLAN BOOKS

A NEW BOOK BY THE CASTLES

Flower o' the Orange

And Other Tales of Bygone Days

By AGNES and EGERTON CASTLE

The charm of the books by the Castles lies in their abounding spirit of youth. They have no equals in reproducing the atmosphere of romantic adventures, as the continued popularity of "The Pride of Jennico" is witness. Of their latest book, "My Merry Rockhurst," The New York Tribune said: "The tale is exquisitely told . . . reviving all the charm of their earlier books, like 'The Pride of Jennico,' in which they first showed an instinct, amounting to genius, for sunny romance."

A NEW BOOK BY JACK LONDON

The Iron Heel

Mr. London's books are nothing, if not daring; characteristically daring—and successful. Imagine the journal of a woman of to-day edited as a historical document by a man of some centuries hence; not as an important historical document, of course, but as a personal document, making history vivid! It is in this book that one begins to feel the force of Mr. London's brilliant work, of the real aim his vivid picture of his past "Before Adam" and of the present in "The People of the Abyss."

READY NEXT WEEK

Confessio Medici

It is a restful, refreshing book which leaves one feeling repaid for the reading. It has the keen insight of a man accustomed to rapid diagnosis, relieved by a vein of quiet humor that is delightful. It is free from the self-consciousness of the aim to either teach or learn. A kindly, genial personality expresses his view of life, asking only a fair hearing and the friendly sympathy of other thoughtful men.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have nearly ready "The New Plato: Socrates Redivivus," by Thomas L. Masson, who imagines Socrates, a garrulous old man from Athens, just arrived in New York in the steerage of the Lusitania. The Father of Philosophy puts up at the Mills Hotel and discusses us with all comers.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 29th inst. "The Satchel Guide," for 1908, by William J. Rolfe, which this year contains among other new matter some paragraphs on Spain and the Dolomites never before included. They will bring out in book form Ernest Hamlin Abbot's papers "On the Training of Parents," now appearing in The Outlook. They have also in preparation "Italica—Studies of Italian Life and Letters," by William Roscoe Thayer.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready "The Story of Iron and Steel," by Professor Joseph Russell Smith, of the University of Pennsylvania, a new volume in their Library of Useful Stories, showing how iron lies in the ground, how it is mined, how steel is made, etc. They announce the second volume of Horace Traubel's "With Walt Whitman in Camden." They will publish at once a timely volume entitled "Federal Usurpation," by Franklin Pierce, a well-known New York lawyer, who regards his volume as "a plea for the Constitution of the United States." Whatever one's prejudices may be, Mr. Pierce's work will appeal to thinking men at a time when so many weighty questions confront the nation.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish February 17 their first spring novel, "Marcia Schuyler," by Grace Livingston Hill-Lutz; also, a new and timely book on the land of the Czar—"The Russian Peasant," by Howard P. Kennard, M.D., who is now delivering a series of lectures in this country. They will publish shortly "The China or Denny Pheasant in Oregon," by William T. Shaw, of the State College of Washington. This bird, although only introduced into Oregon during the year 1880, has already become that State's most renowned game-bird. The experiment of importing these birds has undoubtedly given fresh and vigorous impetus to the stocking of game in many other States, and this volume will be found valuable to all who are interested in the game-birds of our country.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY has just brought out a book that bids fair to establish itself as a real contribution to literature, in the anonymous "Confessio Medici." It is plainly the work of a medical man, and is ostensibly addressed to his fellow practitioners and to the young man who intends to follow the profession of medicine; yet it will doubtless be read as much outside of the profession as within it. In truth, the physician who here makes confession is first of all a man, who has found time to think and feel and suffer as well as to practice his profession. Yet the tone of the book is the reverse of depressing, and in its quiet charm it is not unworthy of a title that recalls old Sir Thomas Browne's famous work. They will publish shortly a new work by Percy MacKaye, entitled "The Scarecrow." It is the first prose drama by Mr. MacKaye to be published, and is described as an imaginative study of New England temperament, as a local phase of broader human psychology. The scene is laid in a town of Massachusetts during the early witchcraft days of the seventeenth century.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. Andrews, Annulet. [Mrs. J. Kingsley Ohl.] The wife of Narcissus. N. Y., Moffat, Yard & Co., 1908. c. 3-251 p. D. cl., $1.25. The story is told through the diary of the heroine, a young and lovely artist, living in New York City under the care of an old nurse. The time is the present. Taken by a friend to a meeting of the New Hedonists, a crowd of unconventional men and women who discuss love and marriage in unconventional terms, she meets her fate in "Narcissus," the Welsh poet of passion. Her marriage with him is a pitiful story of his intense selfishness and neglect.

Archer, W.; and Barker, H. Granville. Scheme and estimates for a national theatre. N. Y., Duffield & Co., 1908. c. 32+177 p. Q. hf. cl., $2.50.

Compiled and privately printed in the year 1904 in England. The estimates are made in English money. There are many features of the scheme that could be made useful in planning a national American theatre. Chapters are given on methods of selecting actors and actresses, salaries, repertory for a specimen season, principles of selection, expenses in front of the house—refreshments—music, expenses behind the scenes, general expenses—scenery, dresses, lighting, etc., the auditorium, the training school, the guarantee fund. Mr. Barker is an English actor and manager.

Ashley, W. Ja., ed. British industries: a series of general reviews for business men and students. 2d ed. N. Y., Longmans, Cheetham, S.; D.D. A history of the Christian church since the Reformation. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. 12+474 p. 12°, cl., *$2.60 net.

The Archdeacon and Canon of Rochester, England, has completed a task which, he tells us, has occupied his thoughts for many years. The present work carries forward the history of the Church from the close of Archdeacon Hardwick's "History of the Middle Ages and of the Reformation," which was itself preceded by Dr. Cheetham's "History of the early church." These three books together thus form a complete history of the Christian Church, written with constant reference to original authorities, and including all the more important events and movements which have made the Church what it now is. In addition to an elaborate index, marginal notes continually assist the reader.

Confessio medici; by the writer of "The young people." N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. c. 11+158 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

Essays specially addressed to the young man who intends to follow the profession of medicine, but full of wise thoughts and gleanings from literature that will appeal to a far wider public. There is no confession of sins or errors; the author only confesses "what he has learned so far as he has come from his life so far as it has gone."

Cooke, Frances. "My Lady Beatrice." N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1908. c. 244+16 p. D. cl., $1.25.

By the author of "The secret of the green vase." A young New York society girl, worn out with fashionable dissipation, is sent by her doctor to the country to live the simple life. She becomes the inmate of a farmhouse with friends of the doctor, good, warm-hearted, intelligent people, who influence her character strongly for the better. She breaks her engagement with a rich New Yorker, and finally marries the young farmer under whose roof she lives. Many other incidents occur to complete her story. The characters are all Catholics.

Crockett, S: Rutherford. The iron lord; il. by H. R. Boehm. N. Y., [Cupples & Leon, 1908.] c. '07. 6+9-351 p. D. cl., 75 c.

A Scottish ironmaster, owner of the Incubus Mines at Kirktown, is the central figure. He is a hard, cruel, conscienceless man, of violent temper, who hesitates at no crime to gain his ends. Tired of his wife and daughter he sends them to sea in a disabled ship, hoping to rid himself of them. The wife dies of fright, but his daughter is saved. He is not aware that his daughter is alive till many years afterward, when he is cheated out of his wealth and becomes paralyzed and she returns to nurse him. The daughter has an interesting love story.

A revised edition of Smith's famous "Catalogue," published 1829-37, which had become much out of date. More recent information is greatly desired by owners and students of Dutch art. Dr. De Groot is one of the foremost authorities in Europe on this subject, and has completely rewritten Smith's catalogue, giving a concise biography and descriptive list of the works of each painter treated, and also an account of the master's pupils and imitators. The names of the present owners of the pictures are indexed in each case. This first one of the ten volumes promised includes the following men: Jan Steen, Gabriel Metsu, Gerard Dou, Pieter de Hech, Carel Fabritius, Johannes Vermeer.

Only three persons are actively engaged in this little comedy: Priscilla, a pretty, provoking girl, and the man who loves and pursues her; a second suitor, who is the third character, is quickly disposed of. A pet dog and an automobile help to bring things to a climax. The story is evolved entirely through a witty, amusing dialogue.

Opens with author's definition of religion and sketches development of religion from the rudest savage forms to the most exalted conceptions of to-day. There follows an account of the various sacred books that have had a place in history, including John Smith's the Book of Mormon, Madame Blavatsky's "Isis unveiled," and Mrs. Eddy's Christian Science. Religion as the key to history and its development in education and fine arts and the right to property are also explained. The present day conception of God is discussed in a suggestive manner.

There was opposition among the teachers, but Ruth Rex, the most popular and capable teacher, became his defender. Justice ripened into love. She became a convert to the Hebrew religion and married Reuben. Later she convinced him the Messiah must have appeared and he became a convert to Christianity. The concession Ruth made was to leave Methodism and become Protestant Episcopal, as her husband insisted this church has a valid ministry of three orders of Apostolic succession and a liturgy that appealed to the cultivated Hebrew convert.

The story reads like a romance. After years of struggle for a bare existence he was at twenty two a full fledged inventor, having sold his stock-ticker for forty-thousand dollars. After this start the quadruplex telegraph, the dynamo, the incandescent light, the phonograph, the kinoscope, and many things equally wonderful have followed. The inventor himself gave much of the personal history recorded.

The story has its scene in the Balkans. Its moving cause is a Bulgarian conspiracy, behind which is Russia, the aim being to assassinate the king and to take over by Russia not only Bulgaria but adjacent states. The conspirators know each other through "the stem of the crimson dahlia," which carries certain messages. The curiosity of a young American tourist in Constantinople involves him in the conspiracy, and before he can free himself from the toils he goes through many thrilling experiences. A young American girl and her father, ignorant of the real meaning of the conspiracy, have lent it their aid. The three Americans are thrown together in the fight for their own freedom.

Seraphica, a wilful little French Duchess, and the obstinate Prince Renaud, of neighboring duchies, were designed to marry each other. It was in the time when King Louis xv. of France was but a boy, with a regent on the throne in the person of Philip, Duke of Orleans. Renaud refused because he was in love with a court favorite and besides had never seen the little duchess, and he ran away to Paris. where Seraphica followed to punish him. Dressed like a man and fighting like one, she drew Renaud out of one difficulty after another. How he learned who she was and at last gave her his heart is all in the story. A charming old English village, with its many beautiful homes and their delightful inmates, is the scene of a typical English society novel. The characters are attractive, refined people, but quite human in their love of gossip. There are two old bachelors, a lonely young girl, a dashing young widow, the vicar and his wife, Lady Wrotham, the chief personage socially who lives in the Abbey, and Mrs. Redcliffe of Exton Manor, a good, kind-hearted woman, who, it is discovered, had married her deceased sister's husband in Australia. Though the marriage is valid in law, the vicar's wife shows a very unchristian spirit when it is made public.

The scene is a small English town. Two families far apart socially are the characters. The head of the one is the rich and important Sir John Vincent, the head of the other is Mrs. Crunden, of King's Cottage, builder and decorator. Their children fall in love with each other, and many complications ensue. Money troubles in the end bring all together, illustrating that human nature is very much the same in all ranks of life.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 15, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States

POST-HOLIDAY BOOKSELLING.

DURING the lull that follows the holiday rush the enterprising retail bookseller in these days has but scant time for stock-taking and house-cleaning. Important as these duties may be, the bookseller while attending to them must also keep his eye open to the chances of reaping a harvest in the minor seasons that follow closely upon the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Of these the Valentine season is now a thing of the past, but, as usual, has proved fairly profitable. In addition to the new lines of cards and booklets many books among the "remainders" of the holiday season were utilized as souvenirs of the season dedicated to Don Cupid. A satin ribbon tied about the book and fastened with a bow, or a book mark of silk ribbon with a suitable inscription or sentiment printed upon it in gold or silver ink readily transformed many of the attractively-illustrated books brought out during the holiday past seasons. Such books, for that matter, are bound to find admirers the year round as appropriate and attractive gifts for any occasion, because they are simple and inexpensive.

Washington's birthday offers an opportunity of placing books on the Father of his Country and his contemporaries for the many celebrations of the day throughout the country, as well as souvenirs appropriate to the occasion. Provision has also been made for this particular month in the way of "Leap-year" souvenirs. Several publishers have prepared cards for this unique occasion, including the inevitable post-cards, and conceits of various kinds.

St. Patrick's Day, in March, promises to furnish the bookseller with an opportunity of adding a slight contribution to the bookseller's yearly income. Already a number of houses are marketing high-class cards and booklets dedicated to the patron saint of the sons of Erin that are adapted not only as souvenirs for the kin and friends beyond the sea, but also for those who have made this country and Canada their home. The Irishman being a close friend and clannish, anything that is calculated to appeal to these traits is bound to have a welcome, and it needs therefore but the right kind of connections and enterprise to nurse this class of trade into something more important than it has been in the past.

The Lenten season, reaching from March 4 to April 19, always forms an important event in the bookseller's calendar, and should be provided for generously by all booksellers, especially as the Easter season appeals to members of every confession—even to pagans.

The bookseller, during the past six months, has come into contact with many new visitors to his store whose closer acquaintance it should be his aim to cultivate. If he has been alive to his opportunity and has made a favorable impression, his task will not be so difficult as it may seem. At any rate, he must use every legitimate art within his ken and power to use the coming seasons of festivals and fastings as pretexts to continue in touch with these new customers as well as with the old, to the profit of all concerned.

THE Postal Commission, composed of senators and representatives, has presented to Congress a report whose adoption would put the Post Office Department on the basis of a modern business organization of the first rank. Its main features are that the Postmaster-General, as a cabinet officer, should determine the policy but not conduct the administration of the department; that a Director of Posts, who should be a long term and practically a permanent official, should be the administrative head and should be supported by a council and staff of heads of re-organized administrative departments, taking the place of the four Assistant Postmaster-Generals; that over-centralization of supervision should be relieved by creating geographical divisions with a sub-director and staff at the head of each; and that the present complexity of accounting should be minimized by ceasing to require elaborate accountings for non-money order offices, and giving them a petty-cash capital, as it were, on which to do their business under district supervision. This line of reform has been persistently advocated by THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and it is to be hoped that favorable action on the report may be had during the present session.

THE LONDON BOOKSELLER'S JUBILEE.

THE London Bookseller last month reached its fiftieth year, and celebrated the event by a very interesting and attractively gotten up number.

George Herbert Whitaker, the present editor of The Bookseller, appropriately introduces the jubilee number with an account of the origin of the periodical and a biographical sketch of his predecessors in the editorial chair. This is followed by an article on "The Abolition of the Taxes on Knowledge," that is, the stamp duty of one penny on each copy of a newspaper which the late John Francis, the publisher of The Athenaeum, so valiantly and ably helped to abolish. The other articles of retrospective and timely interest are: "The Struggle Against Underselling," "The Relief Fund for Paris Booksellers in 1871," "The Successful Protest Against New Railway Rates," "Trade Dinners," "Some of the Great Houses," with portraits; "The Trade for Fifty Years;" also, "Events and Persons—1858-1908." The articles, though necessarily condensed, are packed with facts and make very interesting reading. In every important movement described The Bookseller took a leading part and very largely helped to the success of the cause it championed.

The Bookseller was started in 1858 by Joseph Whitaker, of Quaker ancestry and leanings, (with whom was associated as publisher Edward Tucker,) at 17 Warwick Square, Paternoster Row. Mr. Whitaker, the father of the present editor of The Bookseller, was born in London, March 4, 1820. At the age of fourteen he was apprenticed to Barritt & Co., bookbinders. The senior member of the firm soon recognized that his new apprentice possessed qualities superior to those required for the mere mechanical purposes of the bookbinding, and therefore placed him as assistant in his Bible establishment in Fleet Street. A short time after Whitaker went to John Henry Parker's, of Oxford, where he gained much experience and literary knowledge. Parker was so impressed with Whitaker's capabilities that he entrusted him with the formation and management of his London house at 377 Strand, where he originated the Penny Post, the first penny monthly church magazine, which is still continued in its original form. For a short time he was also connected with J. W. Parker, at that time the principal theological publisher in London. On leaving the Parkers, Whitaker began business as a publisher of religious books in Pall Mall, migrating in 1855 to 310 Strand, where he issued The Artist, the forerunner of the Art Journal and the Portfolio of later days. His business, however, did not prosper and he was obliged to make a composition with his creditors. Though the Court cleared him, Whitaker, as soon as he was able, met every one of his obligations in full, with interest. In 1856 he became editor of The Gentlemen's Magazine. In 1858, as already mentioned, he started The Bookseller, which in 1860 absorbed Bent's Monthly Literary Advertiser. In 1863 Whitaker purchased Mr. Tucker's interest in The Bookseller, whose offices by that time had been established at 12 Warwick Lane, where it is still published. Indeed, the care and thought which were brought to bear on the production of The Bookseller in every direction are well shown in the fact that its form has remained practically unchanged during the half century of its existence, as may be seen from the reduced facsimile of the first issue which accompanies the fiftieth number.

In 1868 Whitaker conceived the idea of producing an almanac that should be better and more complete than any hitherto published. The result was "Whitaker's Almanac," and the soundness of his judgment was more than proved by the sale of the first issue—36,000 copies being subscribed for before publication. In 1874 the "Reference Catalogue of Current Literature," based on the plan of the "Publishers' Trade List Annual," originated in the United States by Frederick Leyoldt, made its appearance. In 1880 the growth of the wholesale stationery trade had made it evident that its demands on the space of The Bookseller would be greater than the limitations of that publication permitted; at the suggestion, therefore, and with the assistance of his son, Joseph Vernon, a new monthly, The Stationery Trades Journal, was founded in the special interests of that branch of the trade.

Joseph Whitaker died May 15, 1895—his son, Joseph Vernon Whitaker, having died January 15 the same year. Joseph Vernon Whitaker, the second editor of The Bookseller, was born in London, February 3, 1845. Restless at home he went to sea, and then enlisted in the army in the East Indies, rising to the rank of a full sergeant. In 1866 he purchased his discharge and took a position in his father's office. Two years later he was induced by G. W. Childs, of Philadelphia, to edit the American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular, which he continued to do until it was merged with the Weekly Trade Circular, now THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. In 1875 he returned to London to take editorial charge of his father's publications, in the direction of which he has been succeeded by his brothers, George Herbert and Cuthbert Wilfrid Whitaker.

On behalf of the American booktrade we wish our sturdy contemporary many more happy jubilees, all of them as full of as good work as that which marks every monthly number of the first half century of its existence.

SECOND-HAND BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION OF ENGLAND.

THE SECOND-HAND BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION of England gave its first dinner at the Criterion, London, January 23. Henry F. Stevens, the president, acted as toastmaster. There were present upwards of fifty members and their guests, including the wives of a number of the members. The chairman in an amusing speech referring to the work already done by the Association and the importance of bookselling introduced the speakers of the evening, among whom we note our confrères, R. B. Marston of The Publishers' Circular, G. H. Whitaker of The Bookseller, and Mr. Murray of The Clique. The pièce de resistance of the evening was a semi-musical entertainment entitled "An Hour in Fairyland," arranged by Frank Karslake, the founder of the Association. The entertainment was led by Mr. Karslake as the Pied Piper of Hamelin, assisted by a number of clever children, who, as fairies and gnomes sang, danced, performed on musical instruments and recited selections from Shakespeare.

On the following day, January 24, the first annual meeting of the Association was held at the Criterion. Henry Stevens, having expressed his intention to resign the presidency, though he would continue to give the society all the help in his power, B. D. Maggs was unanimously elected president, and the treasurer, Mr. Chatto, of Pickering & Chatto, the hon. secretary, Frank Karslake, and all the retiring members of the committee were unanimously re-elected.

FOR A PARCELS POST AND DIRECTOR OF POSTS.

PARCELS POST.

SENATOR BURNHAM, of New Hampshire, on February 10 introduced in Congress a bill to provide a rural delivery parcels post for merchandise and other articles actually mailed on rural delivery routes. The rural free delivery routes now number more than 38,000, and on them in excess of 15,000,000 people receive a daily postal service.

The measure provides for the establishment of a domestic rural parcels post at special rates of postage, for the delivery of foodstuffs, dry goods, drugs, books and other merchandise. The rate of postage is to be five cents for the first pound and two cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof, and on parcels weighing less than one pound as follows: Two ounces or less, one cent; over two ounces and under four ounces, two cents; over four and not exceeding eight ounces, three cents; over eight and not exceeding twelve ounces and under one pound, five cents.

Two important limitations are placed on the use of the proposed parcels post by the following provisions:

That nothing herein contained shall be taken as authorizing the acceptance or delivery at the special rates of postage herein provided of any parcel offered by any person acting as agent or representative, upon commission or otherwise, for any person or company not resident on such rural delivery route.

That only such parcels shall be received for delivery at the special rates of postage herein provided as are offered by bona fide merchants or dealers whose regular places of business are on rural delivery routes covered by this act, in the ordinary and regular course of their business, and by residents on such routes in their individual capacity.

The bill provides that the parcels carried shall not weigh more than eleven pounds, or be more than three feet six inches in length. Perishable articles will be sent at the senders' risk, and will not be accepted at any post-office more than three hours before the departure of the mail from the office.

DIRECTOR OF POSTS.

Congress also received on the same day a preliminary report of the joint commission, consisting of Senators Penrose, Carter and Clay, and Representatives Overstreet, Gardner and Moon, appointed by the last Congress to investigate the Post Office Department. Chief among the recommendations is a plan to place the actual direction of the business of the Post Office Department and service in the hands of an officer, with necessary assistants, to be appointed by the President, "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate," for long terms, so as to insure the continuity of efficient service. Under this plan the Postmaster-General, as a member of the Cabinet, would be chargeable with general supervisory control and the determination of questions of policy.

BEST-SELLING BOOKS IN ENGLAND IN JANUARY.

THE following books, according to the London Book Monthly, were in greatest demand in England during January:

The Mother, by Eden Phillpotts.

Sheaves, by E. F. Benson.

Graham of Claverhouse, by Ian Maclaren.

Rambling Recollections, by Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, a work rich in personal experience and observation and overflowing with "good stories."

Christianity and the Social Order, by the Rev. R. J. Campbell, a study of Christianity and modern socialism, by the pastor of the London City Temple.

Hustled History, by the authors of "Wisdom While You Wait," a fresh venture in the same witty, diverting and, withal, profitable manner.

"THREE WEEKS" INDICTED IN BOSTON.

THE Grand Jury, according to the Boston correspondent of the New York Sun, has been investigating Mrs. Glyn's book, "Three Weeks." The first intimation came on February 12, when police inspectors arrested Joseph E. Buckley, agent for Duffield & Co., the publishers of the book, on an indictment warrant which charges him with selling a copy of the book to Inspector McCarr, of the headquarters staff. Buckley was arraigned before Judge Fessenden and was held in $500 bonds, which he furnished.

The arrest of Buckley is due to a movement already noted by us, which begun last December by the Boston Watch and Ward Society. Copies of the book were submitted to the district attorney and the judges of the lower court before the case was called to the attention of the Grand Jury. The Grand Jury indictment sets forth that "the language on certain pages of the book is improper to be placed upon the court records and offensive to the court."

THE HISPANIC SOCIETY BUILDING.

THE HISPANIC SOCIETY BUILDING, erected by Archer Huntington at the fork of West 156th Street, contiguous to Riverside Drive, New York City, and close to the new building of The Numismatic Society, is now open to the public. The museum and library present a complete history of Spain and her colonies in their national, political, social, intellectual and art life, and are well worth a visit and careful study. The library is housed down in the high basement quarter and is divided up into separate sections representing distinctly Spanish subjects, as for example, that of the Inquisition, that of the bull fights of Spain, that of political and ecclesiastical history, etc. Much money has been expended in bringing together this collection of rare volumes, manuscripts, illuminated books and missals, besides costly illustrated volumes, and choice works of the poets and Spanish writers up to the present time in fine bindings. Ample facilities for study are provided through the whole building.

THE FEBRUARY DINNER OF THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE February dinner of The Booksellers' League will be given on the 19th inst., 6:30 P.M., at the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York City. The Rev. Madison C. Peters, author of "Wit and Wisdom of the Talmud," etc., a well-known lecturer, and Clayton Hamilton, of the editorial staff of The Forum, have promised to help entertain the League on this occasion. Members who wish to attend must notify Charles A. Burkhardt, 31 West Twenty-third Street, before February 17, or no provision will be made for them at the table.

COMMUNICATIONS.

WATCH OUT FOR ABISCOTT.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: The booktrade of New York City will do well to be on their guard concerning a rather slick young man who calls himself Abiscott. He has a fashion of asking for books on memoranda to be shown to a customer with promise of a prompt return of money or the books. We have been waiting since December for a prompt return, and while this "promising" young man makes frequent promises—by mail—he "doth not yet appear" with the cash.

A word to the wise from one of the other-wise may be of use.

STRINDBERG'S "THE FATHER" AND OSTROVSKY'S "THE STORM."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Our attention has been called to an announcement in your issue of February 8 that John W. Luce & Co. are about to publish "The Father," by Strindberg, and "The Storm," by Ostrovsky.

Permit us to say that we are the only authorized publishers for these books in the United States, and that our editions were published as long ago as 1899 and are still in print.

CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 10, 1908.

SLATTERY AND TOLSTOY ATTRACTED NOT ATTACKED BY SABATIER.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: On page 818 of your issue for February 8, in the paragraph headed Sherman, French & Co., the statement is made that Mr. Slattery like Count Tolstoy and many another has been "attacked" by Sabatier. I saw the same statement in another journal recently, but it seems to me that the collocation shows plainly that what the writer of the paragraph meant to say was that Count Tolstoy, Mr. Slattery and many others have been attracted by Sabatier. The fact that Mr. Slattery translates Sabatier's letter would seem to imply that he was on good terms with him. It is curious that the modern exponent of that gentlest of saints, Francis of Assisi, should be even supposed to be engaged in attacking those who show in this modern world very much the same qualities St. Francis exhibited in the thirteenth century.

SAMUEL MACAULEY JACKSON.

NEW YORK CITY, February 10, 1908.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM R. GEDDIS, for twenty-six years proprietor of the book and wall paper store on the east side of Main Street, Brattleboro, Vt., died in that city January 29. Mr. Geddis was born in Schaghticoke, N. Y., April 3, 1843.

JOHN J. HARRINGTON, who for thirty years sold newspapers at the Pennsylvania ferry at the foot of Cortlandt Street, New York City, and who numbered among his acquaintances many prominent men, died of heart disease on January 29. He was forty-five years old and lived at 1478 Vyse Avenue with his wife and six children.

MANSFIELD LOVELL HILLHOUSE, librarian of the Hispanic Society of America in West 156th Street, New York City, died on February 6 following an operation for appendicitis. He was a son of John and Catherine Van Vranken Hillhouse, and was born in Watervliet, N. Y., February 14, 1858. He was graduated from the Columbia law school in 1879 and entered into general practice. He wrote two books, "Iola, the Senator's Daughter," and "Storm King." He was assistant librarian of the American Numismatic and of the Archæological Society.

JUDGE CHARLES COWLEY, one of the oldest lawyers of Massachusetts, died in Lowell,

Mass., February 5. Judge Cowley was born in Gloucestershire, England, on January 9, 1832. He was brought to this country while a child and was educated under private tutors at Lowell. In 1856 he was admitted to the bar. He served as captain of the Wamesit Rifles in 1861, was paymaster on the United States steamer Lehigh in 1864, and judge advocate of the South Atlantic blockading squadron in 1864-'65. He was with Admiral Dahlgren when he entered Charleston on February 18, 1865, and when his flagship was sunk by a Confederate torpedo at Winyah Bay, S. C., on March 1, 1865. Mr. Cowley resumed his law practice in Lowell and Boston after the war between the States. He was the author of "History of Lowell," "Famous Divorces of All Ages," "Leaves from a Lawyer's Life Afloat and Ashore," "Reminiscences of James C. Ayer," and the "Siege of Charleston and Savannah," and editor of Dahlgren's "Maritime International Law."

PERSONAL NOTES.

H. C. KINSEY formerly connected with the book department of John Wanamaker, has succeeded Hermann Kleinteich as buyer at R. H. White Company's, of Boston.

THE many friends of Albert D. MacMullen, the well-known representative of the H. M. Caldwell Co., of Boston, will be pleased to hear that at the annual meeting of the company, held February 4, he was elected vice-president, and made a director of the company.

FRED. D. IRISH, who retired from active business about a year ago, has accepted a position with the H. M. Caldwell Co. Mr. Irish has many friends throughout the trade who will be pleased to hear that he has quite recovered his health and is able to resume business.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD is expected to arrive in New York City in March for a long-postponed visit.

ELIZABETH BISLAND, author of "Lafcadio Hearn's Life and Letters" and other books, has at last announced herself as the author of "The Secret Life," published by John Lane Company. This volume has met with favor both in England and America, and the author is at last willing to admit her identity. The publishers are planning to issue a new edition of this book in the spring.

It is well-known that many cataloguers, as well as her family generally, spelled Ouida's name (Ramé) with two e's, the first of which was accented (é.) Ouida, however, it is said on the authority of a correspondent of the New York Sun, spelled it with one e and that accented, though her real name was Rames. An examination of the effects of Ouida disproves the report that they included one or two unpublished novels. There was nothing in her effects but a diary, some old manuscripts and private letters. In the absence of heirs the papers will remain in possession of the Government.

GEORGE MEREDITH entered upon his eightieth year on February 12, having been born on that day, in 1828, in Hampshire, Eng. He was educated partly in Germany, and was brought up to the law, which he quitted for literature. In 1851 he published a volume of poems, which was followed four years later by "The Shaving of Shagpat, an Arabian Entertainment," a burlesque prose poem. "Farrina, a Legend of Cologne," appeared in 1857, and, in 1859, came "The Ordeal of Richard Feverel," a philosophical novel, bearing upon the more serious questions of moral education. From 1860 to 1900 Meredith brought out upwards of twenty books, chiefly prose. In 1892 Meredith was elected president of the Incorporated Society of Authors to succeed Lord Tennyson. A style of much obscurity and an excess of epigram have long prevented Meredith's works from becoming popular with the average novel-reading public, but among the cultured and critical he has always been regarded as the first of living novelists.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CINCINNATI, O.—The Robert Clarke Company is reported to be in receiver's hands.

NEW YORK CITY.—Frank Walters, who established the Lexington Book Shop at 730 Lexington Avenue, about three years ago, has retired from business and purchased a large estate, situated in South Landisfield, Berkshire County, Mass., so as to have more leisure for his ornithological studies. Max Harzof, formerly with The Baker & Taylor Co., bought Mr. Walters's business on April 1, 1907, and has recently taken into partnership Christian Gerhardt, who was for nearly twenty years connected with the well-known book auction houses of Bangs & Co., The Merwin-Clayton Sales Co., and recently with The Anderson Auction Co. The new firm intend to continue the business as previously conducted under the name of Lexington Book Shop, making a specialty of books on natural history, science, and books that will interest collectors and librarians.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—A fire that broke out early in the morning of the 6th inst. destroyed the building at Locust and American Streets, near Third and Walnut Streets, occupied by the Garrett & Gragor Printing and Publishing Company, the T. W. Ziegel Publishing Company and the Franklin Bindery Company, a blank-book concern. Among the damaged and burned stocks were thousands of Bibles. The firemen threw the things into the streets to cause the flames to die out sooner, and piles of prayer books and Biblical literature littered the streets. Ten thousand telephone books which were just printed for the Keystone and Interstate Telephone Companies were also burned.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Thomas B. Wanamaker retired on February 1 from the firm of John Wanamaker, and from and after that date, which commenced the new fiscal year, the business will be conducted under the same name by John Wanamaker and Rodman Wanamaker.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY, 64 Fifth Avenue, New York, have issued special "Check Lists" of their books on given subjects, extracted from their complete catalogue, which will be found convenient and useful by those interested only in certain subjects. They have brought out forty-two of these "check lists," dealing with Sociology and Economics, Architecture, Biography, Chemistry, Education, Fine Arts, Geology, Law and Jurisprudence, Mathematics, Physics, Religion, etc. The lists will be sent free on application.

MARTIN BRESLAUER, 16 Unter den Linden, Berlin, has brought out the first of a series of important catalogues of works illustrating early life in Germany. The present part is devoted to German song—religious and secular—from the fifteenth to the eighteenth centuries. Many of the 550 items recorded are from the famous library of the well-known hymnologist, Karl Biltz, and as a whole form the most important collection of this kind offered for sale in thirty years—since the collections of Meusebach, Heyse and Maltzahn were sold. Owing to the unusual wealth of its many unknown books and songs its sale forms a most interesting event for musicians, historians and those interested in the period of the Reformation. The catalogue is very fully annotated and is illustrated with upwards of 100 reproductions and facsimiles of old or specially important works. A portrait of Karl Biltz is given as a frontispiece. There are four indexes: (1) first lines of hymns or songs; (2) index to melodies; (3) author-and-subject index; (4) list of bibliographies quoted and abbreviations. This list exceeds the limits of an ordinary bookseller's sales catalogue, and must be considered as a bibliographic reference work on the subject to which it is devoted, even if it does not cover it comprehensively. So far as it goes it is authoritative and will help in supplying the future bibliographer of hymnology with much valuable material. (582 p. 8°, pap. 8 marks.) It is expected that the series will be completed in ten parts. Pt. 2, "Satiren, Pasquile, Dialoge, Schwänke und Schauspiele bis zum xvii. Jahrhundert;" pt. 3, "Die deutsche Frau und die Ehe, bis zum xvii. Jahrhundert;" and pt. 4, "Beichte, Busse, Bann und Ablass," will be brought out shortly.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.

Charles Higham & Son, 27 Farrington Road, London, Eng., Theological and miscellaneous. (No. 466, 1147 titles.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE title of Winston Churchill's new novel, which is to be published this spring by the Macmillan Company, is "Mr. Crewe's Career."

ONE of the American books which is never mentioned among the "best-sellers" is "The Horse Book," issued by the Government, and yet according to the latest reports three million copies have been disposed of.

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. will publish this spring "The Psychology of Advertising," by Walter Dill Scott, professor of Psychology in the University of Chicago, and author of "The Theory of Advertising," brought out by this firm some years ago.

THE Catholic encyclopædia, known as "Herder's Konversations-Lexikon," which since 1902 has been appearing in its third revised edition, (B. Herder, St. Louis,) has just been completed by the publication of the eighth volume. The work is richly illustrated, this last volume having in the text 430 illustrations and the "Beilagen" 670 more.

ALL attempts to save Ferdinand Brunetière's library having failed, it was sold last week at the Hotel Druot. Many of the 12,000 volumes composing the library were almost equivalent to manuscript, as they contained so many marginal notes, especially in the books of adversaries like Ernest Renan. The total realized from the sale was 43,531 francs, or about $8706. A few lots fetched over $80.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish at once "The Unlucky Family," by Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, illustrated by E. T. Reed; "The Call of the Deep," by Frank T. Bullen; "The Playmate," by Charles Turley; "A Walking Gentleman," by James Prior; "Ludwig the Second, King of Bavaria," by Clara Tschudi; also, "Quaker and Courtier, the life and Work of William Penn," by Mrs. Colquhoun Grant.

A SPECIAL course in Practical Advertising has been begun in the New York University School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, in the University Building on Washington Square, East, New York City. The lectures will be given on Saturday evenings during the months of February, March, April and May. The tuition for the complete course is $15. Full particulars may be obtained from W. H. Lough, Jr., secretary, at the University Building.

DUFFIELD & Co. will publish on the 19th inst. a novel by Martha Gilbert Dickinson Bianchi, entitled "A Modern Prometheus," the heroine of which works out her own salvation under the influence of a young Italian priest; also, "The Sermon on the Mount," a new volume in the Rubric Series, with marginal decorations in color and attractive binding, an appropriate gift for the Lenten season. They will publish later in the month "To the End of the Trail," a posthumous volume by Richard Hovey. Early in March they will bring out "The Marquis and Pamela," by Edward H. Cooper, author of "The Monk Wins," a novel describing the wooing of a well-known gambling marquis, which presents a brilliant picture of smart English sporting society.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. announce that they have just arranged for the publication this spring of several books not previously mentioned. In April they will issue "The Breaking in of a Yachtsman's Wife," by Mrs. Mary Heaton Vorse, an outdoor book recounting the diverting experiences of a clever woman on Long Island Sound, Massachusetts Bay and the Mediterranean. In the late spring they will publish Professor Arlo Bates's new book, entitled "The Intoxicated Ghost, and Other Stories." They have in press two interesting books of travel—"The Soul of Spain," by Havelock Ellis, the well-known psychologist, and "Lands of Summer," by T. R. Sullivan, dealing with the countries bordering on the Mediterranean.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish this month "Altars to Mammon," a novel, by Elizabeth Neff, with illustrations by F. Dana Marsh; "The Man Who Was Dead," a new novel by Arthur W. Marchmont, with eight full-page illustrations in black and white; "Masterpieces of Holbein," in The Painters' Series, with sixty reproductions from original paintings by F. Hanfstaengel; "Raphael," by Paul G. Kenedy, and "Leighton," by A. Lys Baldry, in The Masterpieces in Color series, with eight reproductions in color; also, six new issues in the Famous Hymns of the World Series—"Jesus Lover of My Soul," "Abide With Me," "Just as I Am," "Lead, Kindly Light," "Rock of Ages" and "Nearer, My God to Thee," with illustrations, and bound in paper with Florentine Post-Card in front.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will follow William De Morgan's striking new novel, "Somehow Good," next week, with two strongly contrasted novels—Edward Barron's "The Lost Goddess," a fairly "breathless" tale of the adventures in Brazil of some New Yorkers of to-day, and J. Breckenridge Ellis's "Arkin-saw Cousins," a quiet story, notable for its humor and telling delineations of character. They also announce for this month a new "Calculus," by Professors E. J. Townsend and G. A. Goodenough, of the University of Illinois, which will appeal to all undergraduate students of the subject, but particularly to engineers, by reason of its practical character; also, shorter text-book of "Physiography," by Professor Rollin D. Salisbury, of the University of Chicago, whose comprehensive text-book on the subject, published last year, made a distinct "hit."

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just issued "The Louisa M. Alcott Reader," a new book of supplementary reading for the fourth school year, selected from the writings of Louisa M. Alcott. This school reader consists of ten of this author's charming short stories, simpler than "Little Women." Their early 1908 novels include "The Reaping," by Mary Inlay Taylor, author of "The Impersonator," etc.; "The Hemlock Avenue Mystery," a detective story by Roman Doubleday, a new writer; "The Supreme Gift," by Grace Denio Litchfield; a new novel by Anna Chapin Ray; "The Weight of the Name," by Paul Bourget, translated by George Burnham Ives; "The Heart of the Red Fir," a story of the Northwest by Ada Woodruff Anderson; "The Adventures of Charles Edward," by Harrison Rhodes; and "Five Knots," a new mystery story by Fred M. White.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY will introduce next month to American readers a new English novelist, John Travena, who has made, with his first novel, "Furze the Cruel," a profound impression upon the critics and discerning readers of his own land. They will publish shortly "The Sixth Speed," the first novel by E. J. Rath, a young writer who has made a reputation lately in the magazines, which deals with the astonishing career of a motor boat of phenomenal speed, (such a boat as may be expected in reality about the year 1925,) and the way its career affected the affairs of the hero and heroine, the dwellers alongshore and aboard yachts, and the American and Japanese nations; also, "The Riddle of Personality," a story of the scientific development and utilization of man's "latent powers," by H. Addington Bruce, with a critical bibliography guiding the reader to authoritative text-books on each of the special topics discussed.

THE BUFFALO HISTORICAL SOCIETY, Delaware Park, Buffalo, N. Y., have just brought out "The Addresses, Private Correspondence and Miscellaneous Writings of Millard Fillmore," complete in two volumes, (forming v. 10 and 11 of the Buffalo Historical Society Publications.) Mr. Fillmore, besides being the Chief Executive of the Nation in one of the most important periods of its history, was a member of the New York Legislature, 1829-1831; Representative in Congress eight years, in his last term (1842) being chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, "Leader of the House" and Father of the Tariff of 1842; Comptroller of New York State in 1848, Vice-President before he succeeded General Taylor to the Presidency in 1850, and candidate of the American ("Know-Nothing") and Whig parties for President in 1856. He thus came into touch with nearly all the prominent men of his time, and his correspondence will throw much light on certain political movements of his time. The work has been edited by Frank H. Severance, the secretary of the society.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

PUBLISHED FEBRUARY 17th

A WHOLESOME ROMANCE

Marcia Schuyler

By GRACE LIVINGSTON HILL LUTZ

Author of "The Story of a Whim," etc.

The story of Marcia Schuyler, set in the time of 1830, has a unique plot, fragrant of lavender and rosemary. It is a romance of a simple life, yet thrilling with heart experiences, touched with humor, shadowed by tragedy—but through it all Marcia wins her sweet way in spite of maiden-aunts and jealous rivals.

Frontispiece in color by Anna Whelan Betts, and six illustrations from paintings by Edward L. Henry

A TIMELY BOOK ON THE LAND OF THE CZAR

The Russian Peasant

By HOWARD P. KENNARD, M.D.

The author, an English surgeon, is now delivering a series of illustrated lectures in this country on Russia and her peasantry, so the publication of his book is very timely.

Dr. Kennard gained his knowledge of the peasant from personal contact, and living with him in all parts of European Russia. He reveals appalling conditions of poverty and suffering, and in reading over the pages of the book one is rewarded by the feeling that he is at the very heart of the Russian nation and the Russian people. The numerous illustrations, made from photographs taken by the author, furnish additional illumination on the daily lives of these unfortunate people.

Illustrated. 302 pages. 12mo, Cloth,

JUST PUBLISHED

The Call of the South

By LOUIS BECKE

Author of "The Ebbing of the Tide," "By Reef and Palm," etc., etc.

Mr. Becke is the legitimate successor of Herman Melville, whose stories Stevenson considered among the best ever written; and his tales of life among strange peoples in that part of the world, the South Sea Islands, "where there ain't no ten commandments," are in a class by themselves.

12mo. 320 pages. Cloth, $1.50
